Outlook

I am an experienced media and education professional with a background in academic management. I am seeking the challenge of a senior role with a charitable organisation. I have twenty-five years' experience working with young adults in Higher Education, and in community engagement projects. I am experienced at financial planning, ensuring that organisations and projects make efficient and prudent use of resources. I am a successful fundraiser who thrives on developing collaborative partnerships. I enjoy working with young people, as I am an advocate of innovation, exploring new learning practices, developing new production techniques and promoting collaborative working methods. I am a campaigner for improved access to creative civic media that is community-focussed, and which promotes diversity, inclusion and social value.

Leadership Skills

As a director of the Community Media Association my role was outward facing. I fostered and established regular dialogue between members, service users, partners, stakeholders, funders, regulators and government bodies. This included meeting regularly with BBC, Ofcom, DCMS, Internews, Joseph Rowntree Foundation and Carnegie UK in order to secure funding and partnership projects.

As the Chair of Governors at Sherard School I was responsible for the overall financial strategy of the school, ensuring it was efficiently managed in order to meet parents' expectations. My role was to set budgets that enabled the leadership team and staff to meet the needs of pupils, while working within the policy and resource framework of Leicestershire County Council and Ofsted.

As the Station Director of DemonFM I established the station as a full-time community broadcaster, and secured funding that enabled radio operations. As the Ofcom licence-holder I was responsible for the station's legal compliance, while also being the lead contact for volunteer engagement and safeguarding.

As Programme Leader at Leicester Media School I managed, mentored and appraised staff, in addition to guiding students through a positive learning experience. I championed the development and validation of new courses, ensuring that the quality and status of the learning met with DMU and HE thresholds.

As a school governor, practicing teacher and researcher, I have broad experience ensuring that safeguarding practices are up to date and fully implemented, and that any risks or harms which might occur are mitigated, properly reported and sensitively managed.

As a module tutor at De Montfort University I project managed many hundreds of project and research students, guiding them to meet deadlines and manage their resources effectively.

My PhD demonstrates that I can independently devise, manage and evaluate a long-term project based on little prior foregrounding information, while taking it to successful completion.

BA (Hons), De Montfort University - Media Studies.

Media, Advocacy and Evaluation Work

I continue to work with independent community media organisations in Leicester, developing funding bids and helping to identify inclusive social value objectives and (SROI) indicators. I am skilled in presenting complex issues to diverse audiences of stakeholders, service users and partners. I am able to advocate and promote strategic policy objectives with partner organisations, such as charities, professional media organisations, regulatory and governmental organisations. My experience producing radio and audio programming, producing podcasts, blogging, developing social media platforms, giving lectures and public presentations, means that I am an effective communicator. In MBTI metrics I am INFJ, relating to the pathfinder who is people and values focussed, meaning I am comfortable with organisation leadership that fosters the capability of individuals. I create and share blogs, audio and photography content from my websites and forum. I host a regular community media professional issues-based discussion podcast at <https://decentered.co.uk>, and I am developing a music and discussion podcast at <https://robwatsonmedia.net>.

Research Experience

- In 2019 I was the principle investigator on Internews Europe's report about the sustainability of community media in the UK, in addition to giving papers at academic conferences relating to community media, digital inclusion and media literacies.
- My PhD examined participative development in community media, and was based on a qualitative methodology using techniques drawn from symbolic interactionism, pragmatism and ethnography.
